STO: Ideal for Financing of new Projects or Growth

A STO (Security Token Offering) offers an ideal opportunity to finance new projects or growth investments. The implementation is simple and at the same time opens the door to worldwide sales markets; IR CONSULT, specialist for capital market financing for 25 years, is convinced of this.

Sometimes companies have new ideas for projects that are either to be realized separately from their traditional business or cannot be financed from cash flow. Or, additional budgets are also required for growth investments in production or in global market development, for which there are also financing alternatives: e.g. crowd financing or corporate bonds. However, these financing options are finite, i. e. the associated loan must be repaid after 2 to 5 years. Another innovative option is to issue tokens via a STO.

STOs also have other significant advantages: With a STO, crypto tokens are generated and sold to investors worldwide. Since these tokens are securities, the token buyers can also receive a share in profits or interest and often even profit if the company is sold once. Additional advantages include the fact that it is relatively easy to meet all the requirements (including a securities prospectus) for a STO and that the company does not have to provide any collateral. A STO can be realized within 3-5 months with manageable costs.

At the same time, tokens are not shares, i. e. the token owner (usually) does not receive any direct shares in the company or voting rights. There is therefore no dilution of the old owners in the case of capital measures, but the company receives the required growth capital. A win-win situation par excellence. And after a few years of company growth and value appreciation, an IPO can be an ideal exit for token owners. IR CONSULT supports all individual financing steps thanks to an early and comprehensive planning and thus accelerates the realization.
